Belle

Hi,

Belle again. I'm just tingling with excitement as convention rolls closer. I know I just wrote but what can I say, I got so much to share. If you're like me, and lord knows, I pray you're not, you put off booking your tours and meal deals. I'm not twisting your arm or nothing but I don't want you to miss out so I'm sending you this special edition with all the details and links you're gonna need to register.

There's plenty of tours available for all of youse visiting my city. You got any questions about what you wanna see, just ask me. These tours will show you a lot of different parts of the city and outside, too, including Lancaster where you can still see the Pennsylvania Dutch in their horse and buggies.

And if you want to see where my buddy, Rocky, trained by punching sides of meat, there's a tour of the Italian Market. It ain't just Italian no more but there's still plenty of good food. To make sure we save your seat go ahead and book your tours now you won't be sorry.

Don't forget about the Meal Deals for breakfast and lunch being offered by the Hotel, neither. A great idea if you want to save time for dancing rather than searching for a place to eat.

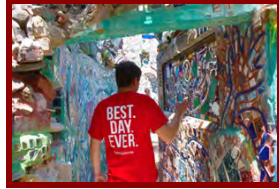

*Finally, some of the dance surfaces will be carpeted. If you have special shoes you like for dancing on carpet be sure to pack them. And to show youse how much we love you, we've ordered dance socks for dancing on carpet for every dancer pre-registered. They'll be waiting for you when you check in.

Yellow Rocks,

Belle

P.S. There's a special note from a dancer who needs our support. Please reach out to him if you can help.

Help Wanted

A member of our dance community needs our help. He will be traveling to convention with his husband, who has Alzheimer's. He's looking for some folks who are willing to provide some respite care during the convention. He can pay for the time. It might be a great opportunity for a non-dancer at the convention. For more information, contact rsvk@rsvk2.com.

Congrats to all my peeps who graduated classes at Independence Squares this year.
